GOV. BECKHAM INAUGURATED
AS EXECUTIVE OF KENTUCKY.

A Novel Feature of Parade Was Presence of Colored Democratic Marching Club.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 11.—Gov. Beckham was inaugurated to-day for a term of three years. The inaugural ceremonies were the most elaborate witnessed in this state in the present decade. The inaugural parade was made up of all the military companies of the state, three regiments, the Duckworth Club, of Cincinnati, political clubs from this city, Louisville and other towns of the state, civic societies and distinguished citizens on horse back forming a procession of great length. When the inaugural procession reached the Statehouse the oath of office was administered to the Governor by chief justice Hazlerig in the presence of thousands who had gathered to witness the ceremonies. After the ceremonies at the inaugural stand the Governor reviewed the troops.

Gov. Beckham in his inaugural address devoted himself entirely to state matters. He thanked the people for the honor conferred upon him by electing him Governor for the remaining part of the present term. He promised the state a clean and honest administration of its executive affairs in a spirit of fairness and tolerance, with no feeling of partisan hate or malice, with the sincere desire to remove as far as possible all friction and ill-feeling from among the people. He briefly stated some of the leading policies by which he will be guided in the administration of the office, and promised his cordial support in the development of Kentucky's industrial interests. He said it would be his policy to keep the State Guard in a first-class condition, but that the military power should always be in absolute subordination to the civil authorities and shall never be called into active service except as a last resort in carrying out the decrees of judicial tribunals.

A novel feature of the parade was the presence of a colored Democratic marching club. It was made up of Democratic negroes of Frankfort, Lexington and Richmond, headed by a Lexington band and led by C. T. Thomas, of Lexington, and Louis Smith, of Frankfort.

MRS. M. F. ALEXANDER.

Death of This Most Estimable
Lady Near City.

Mrs. Mary F. Alexander, widow of the late Col. C. B. Alexander, died at her home on the Canton pike, three miles south-west of the city Wednesday afternoon, after a lingering illness, aged about 65 years.

Mrs. Alexander was a daughter of the late John Lewis, one of the early settlers of the county, and at the time of her marriage to Col. Alexander was Mrs. Mary F. Jackson. She was a sister of Mr. C. T. Lewis, of Florida. She leaves an adopted daughter, Mrs. Gabe L. Campbell.

Mrs. Alexander was a pious Christian, noted for her cheerful and lovable disposition and leaves a wide circle of friends to mourn her loss.

She had been a member of the Ninth street Presbyterian church in this city for many years.

The funeral was held at her late residence at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Dr. W. L. Nourse, and assisted by Elmer D. Smith, the interment took place in the family grave-yard.

Rev. Yancey Wilson has been granted a leave of absence from pastoral work this winter by the two churches (Second Advent Christian) of which he is pastor. He left this week on an evangelistic tour of the south and west and during his absence will visit Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Indian Territory.

NOTES

Of the Christian County Hunting Club.

The Fiftieth Annual Hunt Taken in Arkansas in November
1900.

Owing to the rumors of "Black tongue" among the deer in and around our old camping grounds in Arkansas the hunt was postponed until we could obtain more satisfactory information by wire and mail. We at last learned that the reports were false. On the morning of the 14th November we met at Pembroke where a special train of three cars awaited us. Horses, mules, dogs, servants and camp equipage were soon loaded. The scene was suggestive and lively—Amid the baying of hounds, blowing of horns, farewells and good wishes of the unfortunates who were left behind, we were soon off on special train for Memphis. The day was bright and auspicious. The only thing to mar anticipated pleasures was the failure of some of our most pleasant and successful huntsman to go with us. The postponement and probability of our not going at all, had in some cases effected an entire change in personal arrangements. With much sorrow and regret, we found at Pembroke that Capt. P. H. Pendleton, the Nimrod of the hunt, could not go. But (as always) unselfish and untiring, and thoughtful of the comfort of others he was at the depot with dogs to lend us, and feed for man and beast, smoking tobacco for the smokers and chewing twists for the "chawers". With his usual energy and push, especially push, he soon had us loaded. As he bade us farewell, and gave us the last handshake, we knew that our noble friend was experiencing the hardest trial of his life. After twenty years of happy hunting experiences and comradeship to see us go without him was a sore trial to him as well as to us more fortunate and we hope it may never occur again.

We left Pembroke with only four members of the regular hunt. At Clarksville we picked up four more, making eight as against sixteen, our usual complement. At roll call the following answered:

CAPT. S. R. WHITE, the Nestor and captain of the hunt. After forty-nine years of membership, only missing one hunt in the fifty, as good as new. If the boys will only follow where he leads they will have plenty to do and if they get lost they will never know it from him. Although seventy nine winters have frosted his head they have not dimmed his eye nor shaken his nerve. He will ride through more brush and vines and thicker cane from sun-up to sun-down than any man old or young and play euchre or seven up til ten o'clock every night.

LYMAN McCOMBS, Commissary General, Pembroke; he gives no bond and his accounts are always correct and paid. Is a good feeder himself and sees that there is variety and plenty. Although a deacon he refuses to provide any spiritual supplies, leaving it to the Clarksville contingent to assume the responsibility. They say that Lyman will shoot at anything blue, buck, dog or hog. He never drinks.

PETER BARKER, farmer; he is the Hogardus of the camp and the best huntsman in Arkansas. Some attribute his success to luck but I call it PLUCK. He is always on the move and look-out for game. He is a poor stander but good plunger. When Pete shoots "thars meat." He is going to start a combined tannery and knife handle factory. He has been gradually accumulating skins and horns. I wish it was a brewer. He is so far from market and good roads that he has to make his farm supplies and he uses buck-skin to make both ends meet. He is opposed to whisky and good roads, the two best things to be had in the country. But Pete was raised that way and he can't help it.

JAS. S. PARISH, Gentleman, Brooklyn, N. Y. One of the only two originators of the club left. A gentleman of fortune and leisure, spends his winters in Gotham, his summers at the springs and always comes to us for his annual hunt. He has not missed one out of the fifty. Will drink nowhere except out of the Cravens "tuddy but" which has been in camp just as long as he has, they are old friends. JAS. B. LEE, Providence; a grand old man, a good hunter, good woodsman and a good generous and unselfish sportsman. He is single but not satisfied, wants a mate. He will go well to couple. Some women is missing a mighty good chance. No window need

T. L. COOPER, Providence mill owner. A fine shot and a good woodsman. We are afraid Providence will loose a good citizen as Mr. Cooper was very much pleased with the Bledsoe plantation and may buy it. The trouble with this place like others, when you want water you cannot get it, and when you don't want it, you get too much of it. Never drinks.
J. R. CAUDLE, farmer, professional bugler. Can play a horn or take a horn with the best of them. Also camp-master. He is an old huntsman, has been going ever since he had a board and you know how long that is. The best all round man in camp. Never drinks. As Dick cannot swim his wife was very uneasy about him after the big rains.

C. F. JARRETT, farmer, toast-master, etc. A poor shot but good stander. Being rather cross eyed is never left in the woods alone. Is a hearty eater and heavy rider, always behind. In the absence of the secretary and for want of a Love is the cornerstone of a woman's life. She builds all her hopes upon and around those tender affections which she cherishes toward the ones who are dear to her, and which she looks to receive from them in return.

This is woman's nature; it is the God-given instinct that makes her a fond and tender sweetheart; a comforting, helpful wife; an ever-loving, solicitous, care-taking mother.

When a woman feels that the responsibilities and duties of without and motherhood have become a burden to her—a burden and trouble rather than a source of uplifting and inspiration—it shows that there is some deficiency in her physical make-up, some abnormal and unhealthy condition of the delicate and important secret structure of womanhood.

Many thousands of women annually write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., the eminent specialist in women's diseases requesting professional advice—which he is always glad to send without charge—and telling him of the marvelous benefits they have received from his wonderful "Favorite Prescription" in building up their special health and physical strength.

I would like to express my gratitude to you for the benefit I have received from your wonderful "Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. J. C. Anderson, of Kansas City, Mo., Conn. "During the first month of pregnancy I could not keep anything on my stomach. I was so sick I had to go to bed and stay for weeks."

I tried different doctors, but with little benefit. I read about many being helped by using your medicine so I thought I would give it a trial. I began to take "Favorite Prescription" in February following. My husband and I had a little baby girl in February following. My husband and I had a little baby girl in February following.

The "Favorite Prescription" has been most beneficial. It kept me from having a miscarriage. This makes no account of the fact that I did not take "Favorite Prescription" and I had a miscarriage. This makes no account of the fact that I did not take "Favorite Prescription" and I had a miscarriage.

MURPHEY-ALEXANDER.

Christian County Boy Weds an Alabama Lady.

Last Wednesday afternoon in the rectory of St. Michael and All Angels church at Annonis, Alabama, Prof. D. R. Murphey, formerly of Pembroke, now superintendent of the Annonis public schools, and Miss Josephine Alexander, the eldest daughter of Mrs. A. C. Alexander, of the latter place, were united in marriage.

The groom is a son of Prof. E. J. Murphey, of Pembroke, and his many Christian county friends join the KENTUCKIAN in extending the usual congratulations.

In announcing the happy event an Annonis paper says: "Prof. Murphey has been a resident of this city for several years. During that time he has been actively engaged in educational work and is widely known throughout the county and state. He is yet a young man and this fact is eloquent of his ability and fidelity to trusts imposed, evidenced by the fact that he is at the head of the three large public schools of Annonis. His friends are legion and he has won them by exhibiting the best traits of character. Few men of his age command the universal high esteem and good will of his fellow men as does Prof. Murphey."

Miss Alexander is one of Annonis's noblest young women. To those who are so fortunate as to be numbered among her friends, she is loved and admired for her gentle, Christian characteristics. Few women are gifted with a disposition so quiet, and yet withal so sweet, unassuming and generous.

The couple will reside at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Spruill, on Quintard avenue.

MISS RIVES RETURNS.

Author of "Furnace of Earth" Will Spend the Winter Here.

Miss Hallie Erminie Rives, the well-known Christian county writer, arrived in this city last night, on her way south to spend the winter. She will spend a few days here with her cousin, Mrs. Ben F. Briggs, and will also see her father, Mr. Stephen Rives, who will come down today from Murray.

Miss Rives came from New York, where she has been residing the past few years doing literary work, by way of Buffalo and Chicago. At Buffalo she attended a literary banquet, at which she read an original poem, the theme of which was Kentucky. The guests at the banquet applauded the effort very heartily, and the new-papers of Buffalo and Chicago, in their praise of Miss Rives and her literary production.

Miss Rives began writing seven or eight years ago, while she was still a resident of Kentucky, but after awhile she felt her efforts were not appreciated by her home people, and she sought in New York a field where merit is measured without regard to sentiment, and appreciated, for what it is worth. There her talent was soon recognized by the leading papers and magazines of the metropolis, which have patronized her pen very largely the past few years.

IN CLOSER TOUCH

With the Farmers the Agricultural Commissioner Will Endeavor to Get.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 4.—Commissioner of Agriculture Ion B. Nall will make an effort during the winter months, when the farmers of the state have some idle moments to devote more interest in the work of his department. To this end he has determined to organize a "flesh county" farmers' club, composed of the best farmers. Through these clubs, the commissioner hopes to come in closer touch with the agriculturists, and the best distributed over the state will be sent out through these clubs.

The commissioner has also issued a circular letter to the farmers of the State setting forth his plans and what he hopes to accomplish by the organization of the clubs.

KENTUCKY FOLKS.

A book of Short Stories by Mrs. Frankie Parker Davis

A new book entitled "Kentucky Folks and Some Others," by Mrs. Frankie Parker Davis, now deceased, of Providence, Ky., is a little volume of short stories that deserves more than a passing mention. It is being introduced here by Prof. H. W. Davis, who has had the book published since his wife's death about a year ago.

Davis has carefully produced a fine collection of short stories and poems. They were contributed to various literary journals and their great charm is that the stories are real Kentucky folks, in many instances. The initials are "Only, a Tie," a sweet little love story of the Kentucky mountains. "After Many Years," is another story well told and full of love and sympathy.

The entire book of 230 pages is characterized by purity of thought and ease of diction. It is handsomely bound and the price is only $1.

A Gift to Olive.

It is often difficult to decide what to get your friends for holiday gifts, here is a suggestion:

"Good morning, Jennie, I have brought you a nice present," said Gertrude, as she handed her friend a neatly wrapped package.

The pale, weary looking girl who was slowly recovering from severe illness, opened the bundle and held up a large bottle of rich, red medicine.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla!" she exclaimed. "I have been reading about it today and wished I had a bottle."

On New Year's day Jennie was able to be out on the street, and to her friends who remarked how well she was looking she simply said, "Hood's Sarsaparilla," and every one of them knew it was this great medicine that had given back her health.

The Christmas (December) Century is resplendent in an appropriate colored cover designed by Herter; and the frontispiece is one of a group of full page and minor decorations, richly printed in color and tints, illustrating the great old.

"On the morning of Christ's Nativity," which is reprinted from Masson's edition of Milton's poems. Special attention has been paid to color printing in "The Century of late years, but it is believed that nothing else that has been done in the magazine quite equals in richness of effect the results that have been attained in this number. Most noteworthy among the contents is the opening installment of Augustine Birrell's "Down the Rhine," written in the distinctively humorous style of the author's "Outer Days," and lavishly illustrated by Castaigne.

The tramp who will work has no professional pride.

THE PHONOGRAPH.

Prominent Role Played by It in the Recent Campaign.

"The phonographic record played quite a prominent role in the recent campaign," said a St. Louis electrician at one of the hotels the other evening, according to the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "It was used to some extent four years ago, but it was then in the experimental stage as a political adjunct, and the reproductions were confined almost entirely to Bryan's 'cross of gold' peroration. This time extensive preparations were made in advance, and each party had dozens of selections from which to choose. The most popular were brief extracts from addresses by the different candidates, but campaign songs, declarations of principles and jokes with the laugh on either side, one wishes have been sold by the hundred. The demand was principally from the country and small towns, where the phonograph is used to liven up the meetings of political clubs, and in a number of states congressional candidates have employed the machine for sending messages of good cheer to constituents in remote parts of their districts. I spent several hours in a record factory, and was greatly interested in watching them turn out a new set of selections. It was a curious spectacle. One of the first things undertaken was an eight-minute Bryan speech. The operating-room was long and narrow, with a large brass horn at one end and a sounding board at the other. A little baldheaded man sat on a stool in front of the horn, holding a sheet of typewritten copy, and behind him at irregular intervals were seven or eight men armed with megaphones. In plain view was a large dial, divided into minutes, to mark the time. When everything was ready the little man began to declaim, speaking in a very deep, slow voice, with distinct pauses between the words, which completely robbed the selection of anything like dramatic quality. Now and then he raised his hand, and the chaps with megaphones belted solemnly into space. It was a most depressing scene, but when the cylinder was put into the reproducing machine I could hardly believe my ears. The speech was delivered very rapidly but with beautifully distinct enunciation, and the voice sounded full an octave higher than that of the little bald-headed fellow on the stool. It was superbly clear and ringing and was very like the tones of the great Nebraska himself. Even the applause and sounded like the thunderous interruptions of a vast assemblage. I was greatly puzzled, but the miracle was easily explained. All that was done was to speed up the machine about a third faster than it had been going when the record was taken. That not only raised the pitch, but secured a distinctness unobtainable by any other means. It seems that there are tricks in all trades but ours."

THE GENTLE READER.

He (or She) Seems to Have Disappeared with the Stagecoach.

What has become of the Gentle Reader? asks Samuel M. Crothers in the Atlantic. One does not like to think that he has passed away with the stage coach and the weekly news letter; and that henceforth we are to be confronted only with the stony glare of the Intelligent Reading Public. Once upon a time—that is to say, a generation or two ago—he was very highly esteemed. To him books were dedicated with long, rambling prefaces and with episodes which were their own excuse for being. In the very middle of the story the writer would stop and with a word of apology or explanation addressed to the Gentle Reader, or at the very least with a nod or a wink. No matter if the fate of the hero be in suspense or the plot be intricately involved. "Hang the plot," says the author. "I must have a chat with the Gentle Reader, and find out what he thinks about it."

No confidences were interchanged and there was gossip about the universes, and suggestions in regard to the coarseness of human nature, until, at last, the author would jump up with: "Enough of this, Gentle Reader; perhaps it's time to go back to the story."

No Railroad to Quito.

Quito, while a delightful capital, cannot be approached by rail or by wagon road. In two years it is expected that a New York syndicate will have completed a railroad to that point. Horses and mules and thousands of men and women are engaged in bearing burdens to Quito and other towns. It takes 16 Indians about 30 days to convey a piano to Ecuador's capital from the nearest port.

WHERE RUSKIN LIVED.

Home of the Great Art Critic Not at All Artistic.

The house is miles away from everywhere, and even when you are there it is very difficult to get in; you enter at the back, and the front door is where back doors usually are. I had pictured it inside as the brightest example of exquisite taste, and thought it would be a lesson in beautiful esthetic decoration, says a writer in the London Chronicle. But the furniture was simply appalling. I have to this day nightmare recollections of an awful green tablecloth, with a gilt edging to it, and a cheap, forlorn little vase in the center, and there was a terrible sideboard and hideous chairs and couches, all huddled up in faded chintz. Truly the master delivered us from early Victorian bad taste, but he himself remained in bondage to it all his days.

As for the wall-papers, they were enough to make Morris turn in his grave. There was a legend attaching to one (designed, I think, by the master himself), representing very realistic bunches of flowers, with delicate scrollwork zigzagging all about; the flowers were so naturalistic that misguided bees had been known to dash in at the windows and hurl themselves onto the deceptive roses. Once, being much tormented by this repulsive wall paper and the aforesaid legend, I ventured to ask why his roses were right, though he had demonstrated that Zeuxis' grapes were wrong, and I was gilding softly into his pet theory of "representation versus imitation," when he burst into laughter, clapped his hands and said: "His bees were wise and I was a fool," whereupon I changed the conversation.

The chairs and sofas I treated with distant respect as I knew "papa and mamma" and "old nurse" had sat on them, and so they were evermore sacred. I have an etching of one special chair in which a great part of "Modern Painters" was written, and I never look at it without taking my hat off. Amid the bewildering ugly surroundings were exquisite drawings and rare paintings by Turner, Burne-Jones, Prout and Titian, cabinets of shells and minerals, and the delightful incongruity of it all was a constant surprise and charm.

CODFISH THEIR ENEMIES.

Attack and Catch Lobsters Which Are Just Out of Their Shells.

It is probably news to the majority of people to know that the red or rock codfish is a bitter enemy of the lobster that has just crawled out of its shell and is soft and unable to protect itself. During shedding time, says the Lewiston Journal, these lobsters crawl under projecting rocks where the seaweed and kelp are thick and where they find protected places in which to grow through the process of slipping out of their old shells and taking on a new coat of mail, so to speak. For some days after shedding lobsters are weak and unable to cope with those fish that wage war upon them. This fact the codfish seem intuitively to know, and they will swarm around these retreating great numbers and wait for the shedders to crawl out. An old lobster fisherman said the other morning that many times he had stopped his dory over a large number of these red codfish and watched their operations. He had even dropped his line down and dangled tempting bait within a few feet of them. Unwary it happened to land directly in front of their noses, however, they would seldom take it, as they were after lobster meat. When the thin-shelled lobsters would crawl out from beneath the protecting seaweed the codfish would dart at them and strike them fierce blows with their tails, disabling them completely. They would then fall to and devour the helpless crustaceans. This performance the lobster fisherman said he had witnessed many times.

The Book Agent.

"If I were a young man," said a book agent to Cliff H. last yesterday. "I would have this book. If I had it without shoes or coat in order to say 'No, you wouldn't,' said Bobbett: 'If you were a young man, and not a book agent, you would try to hard as any of us to resist the book agent.'—Atchison Globe.

Toronto's City Hall.

PHOSPHORESCENT BACTERIA.

Microbes That, Kept Under Proper Circumstances, Will Light a Room.

M. Raphael Dubois, in a paper read before the Academie des Sciences, described a series of experiments in which he obtains a luminous source of considerable intensity by the use of certain microbes or photobacteria, which have the power of emitting light. These are allowed to propagate in a liquid bouillon of special composition. When the experiment is made with good microbe cultures to start with, and at the proper temperature, the development is rapid, and the liquid soon contains the microbes in sufficient quantity to give the luminous effect. A glass vessel is used to contain the liquid, preferably with plain sides, and it is possible in this way to light a room strongly enough to distinguish the features of a person placed at several yards distance. A new paper type may be read. The light is scarcely any of calorific effect, and the properties of its chemical rays seem to be also feeble, as it requires several hours' exposure with an instantaneous plate to obtain a good image; on the other hand, the rays seem to possess considerable penetrating power, as impressions may be made upon the plate even though screens of wood or cardboard are interposed. A sheet of aluminium is, however, not traversed by the rays.

In these experiments it is important that the bouillon in which the microbes are propagated should be well prepared. It should contain water, salt, an aliment analogous to glycerin or mannite, another represented by the neutrons, asparagine, and an aliment containing phosphorus, such as nucleic or phosphates, as well as traces of the mineral compounds which enter into the composition of such organisms. The use of peptone is attended with some difficulty, as putrefaction is likely to set in and destroy the action; if it is used, it should be aerated by a current of sterilized air and slightly agitated.

With asparagine the best results have been obtained, and the solution keeps well, giving the phosphorescent effect in free air; its cost, however, is a disadvantage. If well prepared, the phosphorescent solution will keep for a long time without deteriorating; the experimenter has kept some samples in a basement at a low temperature for more than six months. He expects to be able to increase the luminous effect, and thinks that a practical outcome may result from these experiments.

FOUND—A PEARL.

Two Rival Lunch Count Proprietors Compensate in Misery.

It was at Jean's little lunch counter. The man who had been quietly devouring a small fry suddenly sprang from his stool and shouted:

"I've found it!"

Jean left the chair behind the cash register and came over to find the cause of the guest's excitement.

"What is it you have found?"

A pearl! The highest pearl found in an oyster this season," and he placed the opaque object in his palm for Jean's inspection. It was Jean's turn to be excited.

"A pearl! Ah, it is one beauty."

"A gem of the first water."

"One hundred dollars would be a moderate price for such a jewel."

"Will you sell it to me for fifty cents?"

"Fifty? Why, I told you it was worth double fifty."

"Yes, but you found it in here."

"The man who had the pearl appeared to be in deep thought, says the Chicago Daily News. At last he placed the pearl in Jean's hand and said:

"Well, considering that I found it in your oysters it is only right that I should do the square thing. But what use are you going to make of it?"

"I will place it in my window for one advertisement. I will write on a card and ze people will know my oysters have ze pearls. I get ze trade of Bungearten across ze street."

"Great idea! But give me the fifty and the pearl is yours."

Jean fished $40 from a greasy bag and the remainder from the cash register. With mumbled thanks the lucky man departed, and a few minutes later the pearl adorned the window.

A neat card informed the public that the rare jewel had been found in one of Jean's oysters. All morning a crowd stood before the window and Jean was proud. But at noon Jean noticed a similar crowd in front of his rival's establishment.

"He is jealous," said Jean, slipping on his coat and hat, "and he is up something to make one look."

But there was a surprise in store for Jean. In Bungearten's window was an exact duplicate of the Frenchman's pearl.

"Bungearten!" called Jean, "where you get ze pearl?"

The Teuton's chest expanded with pride.

"Dat beart was found in nient oysters. I pay der man dot found it $10 and keep der beart."

"But I paid fifty for one ze same pearl. What kind of a man found your pearl, Bungearten?"

"He wore a golf cap and a blue coat."

"Then it is ze same man. Bungearten, something is funny. Let's take ze pearls to ze jeweler."

The Teuton agreed and Jean hurried over after his attraction. Together they hastened to the jeweler in Van Buren street.

"Are any ze genuine pearls?" asked Jean.

The jeweler examined the pearls and smiled.

"Who said they were pearls?"

"Ve bought dem as beads."

"Then, gentlemen, you have been sold. These are only smoked glass beads. They are intended to hold puff neckties together."

Then Jean and Bungearten went out to tell the police all about it.

When the Deaf Hear.

It is said that persons afflicted with perfectly in the midst of a tumult. A locomotive engineer, upon examination by a medical expert, was found to be very deaf, and, although he protested that he could hear perfectly well on his engine, he was suspended from duty. Some time afterward, having vainly tried to get cured, he applied for reinstatement, again urging the fact of his perfect hearing while on duty. Finally, in order to satisfy him, the physician rode with him upon a locomotive for a long distance and put him to every possible test. To the doctor's surprise, he found the man able not only to hear ordinary sounds without difficulty, but also to distinguish whispers and faint movements that were inaudible to his companion.

New English Lampost.

In England a lampost has been introduced which combines a fire hydrant, tap and fire alarm box. The hydrant can be used for fire alarm purposes, filling water carts and for street flushing, while the small tap can be used by an individual for domestic water supply. There is a water meter and rye in the bottom, by which the water is shut off from the hydrant, thus preventing it from flowing.

Miss Clara Barton's plan to have twentieth century watch meetings is rapidly spreading in all parts of the country. Her idea is to have the people assemble at their churches, lodges or homes on the night of Dec. 14, and watch the birth of the new century at midnight. Many will act upon her suggestion. She does not prescribe the details, leaving the size of the crowds to individual preference. There will no doubt be many meetings in which two will make up the crowds to act as death watches for the nineteenth century. They will assemble in a dimly lighted parlor, while the old man fests the bill for the twelve-cent coal consumed. Some of these watch parties will doubtless celebrate the event—the only one of the kind they will ever witness—in a manner that might shock Miss Clara if she should happen to peep in as the Bridge of Time is crossed.

SPRUNG SURPRISE.

Married in Clarksville—Affair Not An Elopement.

Mr. A. J. Hollingsworth, of Princeton, and Miss Georgia Thelma Hargraves, of Casky, were married in Clarksville Wednesday. Mr. Hollingsworth came up to this city Tuesday afternoon and early Wednesday morning the couple accompanied by Mr. Shell Smith and bride, of Princeton, drove over to Clarksville, where the nuptial knot was tied. The affair, it seems was not an elopement. The bridal party returned here the same day and will make their home in Princeton. The groom formerly lived near Casky, but recently sold his farm to Mr. R. L. Moseley, and returned to Princeton, where his parents reside.

The bride is a sister of Mrs. W. A. Reed, near Casky, and is a very pretty and popular lady.

How to Cure Croup.

Mr. R. Gray, who lives near America, Duchesne county, N. Y., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine I have ever used. It is a fine children's remedy for croup and never fails to cure." When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has developed, it will prevent the attack. This should be borne in mind and a bottle of the Cough Remedy kept at hand ready for instant use as soon as these symptoms appear. For sale R. C. Hardwick.

THROWN FROM TRAIN.

Party Sues Railroad Company for $1,000 Damages.

Suit was filed in the Circuit Court late Monday afternoon by Robert Wall against the L. & N. railroad company for $1,000 damages. Plaintiff alleges that he desired to go to Casky, and after getting aboard here, found that the train did not stop at that place. He at once asked to be allowed to get off, but he charges, the conductor pushed him from the platform while the train was moving rapidly, and in falling to the ground Wall claims he received serious injuries.

Pneumonia Prevented

Among the tens of thousands who have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for colds and grippe during the past few years, to our knowledge, not a single case has resulted in pneumonia. Thos. Whitfield & Co., 219 Wabash avenue, Chicago, one of the most prominent retail druggists in that city, in speaking of this, says: "We recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the grippe in many cases, as it not only gives prompt and complete recovery, but also counteracts any tendency of the grippe to result in pneumonia." For sale by R. C. Hardwick.

WRECK ON I. C.

Train Derailed Near Dawson—
Eight People Slightly Injured.

The Illinois Central limited from Cincinnati to New Orleans was wrecked about 2 o'clock a. m. Tuesday at Hsley, three miles east of Dawson Springs. The accident was caused by the front truck on the engine tank jumping the track and spitting the switch, thereby derailing the cars behind. The cars running on the ground, smashed the steps and brake rigging. The chair car, filled with passengers, left the trucks and fell upon its side, but all the occupants escaped without serious injury. Following is a list of the injured:

C. W. Northrop, Colfax, Ind.; head cut above the left eye.

Mrs. A. T. Coats, Princeton, Ky.; left shoulder injured.

J. W. Scott, Battle Creek, Mich.; left cheek bruised.

Ed Menifee, Covington, Tenn.; both knees cut.

C. F. Underwood, Paducah, Ill.; Illinois Central conductor, riding on the train; scalp wounds.

G. H. Simmons, Owensboro, cut over left eye.

Miss Franklin, Cincinnati, Pullman conductor; scalp wound.

The injured received immediate attention and the passengers went on, being transferred to the north-bound train, which was turned back, its passengers being transferred to the Central City accommodation for Louisville.

The wreck on the road was cleared by 8 o'clock Tuesday morning.

AN ACTOR'S STORY

How "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" Changed the Probable Result of an Election.

Every time my eye strikes some paper of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" remarked a member of a Company playing at the Grand, "the experience of a number of years ago are recalled. It was in the days when I thirsted for fame before the footlights and was willing to do any role from Simon Legree in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" to the super in a comic opera. "We were booked to play in an Illinois town one night and the town was in a fever of excitement over the election, which was to be held the next day. There were two tickets in the field, license and no-license, the former favoring the licensing of saloons and the latter opposing it. You know that "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" teaches a moral, the awful effects of drink. We weren't in town ten minutes when a committee from the licensing party waited on our manager and offered him $100 if he wouldn't show. The manager had a shrewd head and he reserved his answer. He told the manager of the theatre about it and the manager was with the no-license party. He offered Martin $150 to put on the piece and the show for $125. The town was flooded with dodgers, the doors were thrown open and the whole town flocked in and remained throughout the show spellbound. It looked as though the license people would win the day, but after the show was over the result was changed and the no-license party won out five to one." This popular play will be presented at Holland's Opera House this (Friday) evening.

The father? Gone for the doctor. The mother? Alone with her suffering child. Will the doctor ever come? When there's a croup in the house you can't get the doctor quick enough. It's too dangerous to wait. Don't make such a mistake again; it may cost a life. Always keep on hand a dollar bottle of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

It cures the croup at once. For bronchitis, whooping-cough, hoarseness, asthma, pleurisy, weak lungs, loss of voice, and consumption, there is no remedy in equal. A 25c. bottle will cure a miserable cold; the 50c. one is better for a cold that has been hanging on. But the dollar bottle is a more economical in the long run.

better man he was made a protom secretary.

We organized with eight, leaving eight unfortunates at home. All good fellows, and we feel sorry for them but can't help it. Hope they will have better luck next time or better excuses.

Leaving Clarksville at 7 p. m. 15th we were at Memphis at 7 a. m. next morning. Went aboard the palatial steamer "Kate Adams," and left at 5 o'clock for Old Napoleon, about one hundred miles below Memphis. By the way, the writer when a boy of 14 years, went with his father to Hot Springs. In those days there were very few railroads and we went down the Mississippi river to Napoleon, which was then the county seat of Boone county, Arkansas. It was a town of about the size of Pembroke with a nice court-house and two hotels, hospital and many brick and stone residence and roads leading out into the country. By the continual changes and washes of the river, the whole town went into the mighty Mississippi and to-day there is not a brick, stone, chimney or post to mark where a town once stood. It is hard to realize such complete ob-literation, as complete as the fate of Sodom and Gomorrah, but we hope not for the same cause. Convinced us more and more that what God permits, He can destroy. The Arkansas river which once emptied into the Mississippi at Napoleon now empties into White river some twenty miles above. The country around Napoleon was a rich alluvial soil with a continuous succession of fine plantations making a bale or two bales to the acre, with palatial homes of rich and happy people. It is now a howling wilderness covered from two to eight feet deep with sand and grown up in cotton-woods. No roads, no plantations, all desolate and deserted, a home only for the deer, bear and wolf with now and then a solitary trapper or fisherman in many cases no more intelligent than the beasts around them.

DEATH OF W. B. RADFORD.

End Come After Illness of Several Months.

Mr. W. B. Radford died at his home in Longview Wednesday night, after an illness of about six months. He was in the seventy-sixth year of his age and had been postmaster at Longview for probably thirty years.

He leaves a wife and five children: Dr. W. B., Miss Annie, McElroy, Mrs. Ed Cross and Mrs. John P. Bell.

Mr. Radford was one among the most prominent and influential citizens of the county and in his death that community has lost one of its most useful men.

The remains will be brought to this city this morning and the interment will take place in Hopewell cemetery at 11 o'clock.

Ladies like few things better than a handsome dinner set. We have elegant patterns at popular prices, in China and Semi-Porcelain.

"SI PLUNKARD."

Something Out of Ordinary in Amusement Line.

On the evening of Tuesday, December 18, at Holland's Opera House will be given something new and out of the ordinary in the amusement line. The play is a Yankee comedy, entitled "Si Plunkard," with the young Yankee character comedian, Mr. J. C. Lewis, in the title role, supported by a strong company of clever comedians. The comedy is in four acts, depicting New England farm life and some of the more vicious aspects of city life. The first and second acts take place on Si's farm and contain many of those pleasant rural pictures that are so pleasing and attractive to a city audience. In the third act a perfect working threshing machine is introduced. The banging and buzzing of machine and the flying of the straw is so realistic that it carries the mind of the auditor back to scenes and incidents of days gone by. During the action of the comedy a new and novel specialties are introduced by a company of comedians, and during the acts a rare musical treat will be offered by a superb orchestra providing an evening's entertainment of mirth and music unexcelled for excellence.

KILLED TWELVE DEER.

Gracey Club Had a Most Successful Hunt.

The Gracey Hunting Club returned from their annual Arkansas outing Monday. The hunt was the most successful one ever taken by the club and was enjoyed immensely by every one who went on the trip. They found deer very plentiful and killed twelve, three of them being very large bucks. The country also abounded in small game and many squirrels, ducks and quail were bagged. There were about twenty sportsmen in the party.

RIBS HELD BY RIVETS.

Unusual Operation Recently Performed at the Paterson (N. J.) General Hospital.

If John Christlin survives the operation performed on him at the general hospital, Paterson, N. J., he will go through the remaining years of his life with three ribs patched up with metal. Christlin is a watchman at Gausch's dye works in Paterson. He was set upon one night about three weeks ago and brutally beaten. The robbers were trying to make their way into the factory, but Christlin, who is more than 50 years old, stubbornly resisted them and suffered severely in consequence, says the New York World.

When he was taken to the general hospital it was found that three ribs had been broken in two places, causing them to sink inward until the pressure on his heart was dangerous. More than this, the doctors found that the broken ribs had penetrated the lung.

When Christlin grew weaker and weaker each day the physicians decided that they must perform an operation. The broken ribs must be raised so that they would join with the fragments which still retained their position in the diaphragm. This is always considered a delicate operation, and when the patient is in a weakened condition and it becomes necessary to actually rivet the broken bones with metal, the operation is considered a very precarious one. It was necessary to put a metal band around each rib and weld these metal bands together with an artificial metallic rib.

"While this operation is a very delicate one and of unusual interest," said one of the surgeons at the hospital, "it is not new in surgery. There are many persons walking around to-day who have metal patchwork holding their bones together."

"Whether the patient will live or not does not depend upon the operation, but upon his ability to rally from the weakened state brought on by pneumonia. He is now in a dangerous condition, but if he lives 48 hours he will doubtless recover and go through life with the metallic gearing on his ribs."

CANINE DENTISTRY.

English Bulldog, Owned by a Chicago Man, to Be Supplied with Artificial Molars.

"Handsome," the English bulldog owned by Harry D. Platt, 421 E. Prairie avenue, Chicago, holds the record for having made gold in its mouth than any other dog in existence. In a few days Dr. C. P. P. O'Connor will commence some bridge work, which is expected to put the dog's teeth in good condition, at a cost of $50 to the owner.

A few days ago Dr. O'Connor put some gold crowns on the sharp teeth

"HANDSOME" AT EASE.

(Chicago Dog with Gold-Capped Teeth in Its Mouth.)

of the unimposing animal. The dog climbed into the dentist's chair without realising what was about to take place. Its owner held its jaws while the dentist worked, and soon the dog had three or four pretty crowns on its upper incisors. The dog was then taken to the kitchen and a help of pulp followed. An examination showed that it had lost three teeth in the contest. Mr. Platt took the animal over to Dr. O'Connor for repairs. The dentist decided that some new tools would be necessary for the work and these have been ordered.

Handsome is a short, homely-looking bulldog, 18 months of age. Its present master paid $50 for it, but would not part with the animal for several times that sum.

RAILROAD SPEEDS.

France Holds First Place for Long Fast Runs.

In a recent letter to the London Times, a correspondent, who has evidently gone into the subject with great care, has compiled several tables, showing the fastest trains, the distances they run, and their speeds, on the leading railroads of the world. The tables will, observe the Scientific American, be in some respects particularly gratifying to American readers, although it must be confessed that in respect to the total number of fast long-distance trains, France, which of late years has made wonderful strides in the development of her railroads, easily holds the premier position. Under the table of the fastest booked speeds, from start to stop, this country heads the list with four notable trains which are run on the Philadelphia & Reading and Pennsylvania railroads, from Camden to Atlantic City. The two Philadelphia & Reading trains cover the distance of 53 1/2 miles at the rate of 66 2/3 miles an hour, while the two Pennsylvania railroad trains run between the same points a distance of 59 miles at the rate of 64 2/3 miles an hour. Following these is a French train which runs the distance from Morsacq to Bordeaux, 67 1/2 miles, at the rate of 61 1/2 miles per hour, and next to this are four trains on the Camden-Atlantic City lines, with speeds of 61 and 60 1/2 miles an hour. Then follows a train on the Paris-Auxerre route, which covers 81 1/2 miles at a speed of 60 miles an hour. The next two fast runs are of only 15 miles from Dorchester to Wareham in England, which are booked to be made at a speed of 60 1/2 miles an hour. It is a significant fact that out of 13 expresses, with a speed of over 55 1/2 miles an hour, these Dorchester-Wareham trains and three trains on the Canadian railroad, two of which cover 32 1/2 miles at 59 1/2 miles an hour and 35 1/2 miles an hour, and the third 8 1/2 miles at 55 1/2 miles an hour, are the only ones that represent the English railroads; although it is but a few years ago that English roads were supreme in the matter of speed among the railroads of the world. Out of a total of 57 trains given in this table, there are only three other English trains which have a speed of 55 miles an hour or over. Summing up, we find that America heads the list in point of speed, with 23 trains while France has 26 trains and England eight in the table referred to.

The credit for running the fastest long-distance train in the world belongs to the Orleans & N.O. railroad, a train from Paris to New Orleans, a distance of 186 1/2 miles, is run at a speed, including six stops, of 61 1/2 miles an hour. This is less than the fastest train ever run from New York to New Orleans, which was the New York & O. train, which averaged 57 1/2 miles an hour. The last stop of the Orleans & N.O. train is at New Orleans, which is covered at an average speed, including three stops, of 50 1/2 miles per hour.

We have said that in view of the high average speed and great number of its long-distance expresses, France holds the premier position today, a statement which is borne out by the fact that there are 13 expresses which are booked to run at average speeds, including stops, of from 51 1/2 to 57 1/2 miles per hour, over distances of from 123 to 186 1/2 miles. The fastest of these, which runs from Bayonne to Bordeaux, covers a distance of 123 miles at 57 1/2 miles per hour, with two stops, while the most creditable all-rail one from Paris to Bayonne, of 186 1/2 miles, at 61 1/2 miles an hour, above referred to.

Commenting upon this very interesting and impartial communication, the Engineer and Engineering have taken very much to heart the special characteristics points of view. Engineering accepts the situation with the remark that it is "mortifying to observe what an extremely poor show is made by Great Britain in a field in which she has long been pre-eminent," and adds that we take into account the special conditions in each case, the American performance is made to appear even more extraordinary than it is at first appearance. "The Engineer, on the other hand," states that "the occasion has been seized as a favorable opportunity for drawing facts and figures comparisons between the railroads of the United States and of this country." The latter contemporary takes occasion to felicitate itself on the fact that "it has done something to prevent the perpetuation of the preposterous statements as to our enormous speeds attained on American railways." In view of the fact that the speeds are given as absolutely correct, there is something highly diverting to American readers of the Engineer in the persistency with which it has endeavored to repeat from facts which have long been recognized by the world at large.

The merchants of the city are working with the railroad officials to put on a train from Evansville to Hopkinsville leaving Evansville in the morning early and returning in the afternoon. This train would be a great convenience to the traveling public and we trust that the arrangements may be effected.—Madisonville Hustler.

About five years ago I was troubled with catarrh of the lower bowels," says C. T. Chisholm, 484 Dearborn Ave., Chicago, and although I consulted several eminent physicians who prescribed for me I found their remedies failed to in any way relieve me, and the almost became chronic. After suffering several months, one day concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and I beg to assure you that I was most agreeably surprised to find after taking two doses of the remedy that I was completely relieved of the disease that had cost me so much trouble and annoyance. I am thankful to say that I have not suffered from it since." For sale by R. C. Hardwick.

Miss Della Harrison has with one bound as it were, attained a front place in the theatrical profession by her wonderful work as Willie Hammond in Palmer's big production, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room." Opera House, this (Friday) evening.
